

I would like the FCC to reject any changes to current Indiana No Call List protections. I was on the first list maintained by the Indiana Attorney General because I did NOT order phone service so that I could be bothered at home. By the same token, I did NOT acquire insurance or credit cards so that I could be bothered at home. These calls are a clear invasion of my privacy which the Indiana Attorney General's No Call List has protected. Please do NOT weaken this protection! Doing so would be purely for the benefit of the special interests seeking to weaken these protections, not for members of the general public. I would recommend that the FCC use the Indiana No Call List as a model for any national standards enacted, or allow local community standards, as represented by the current Indiana model, to prevail.
